1. GENERAL INTRODUCTION

The ISN Continuing Medical Education (CME) Program aims to advance the sharing and dissemination of knowledge by supporting faculty presenting at local and regional nephrology-related meetings in resource-low countries. ISN-supported speakers are approved by the ISN, which sponsors the travel expenses of up to 3 experts who supplement local speakers. If applicable, and in addition, ISN may sponsor (a) Nurse Ambassador(s) to deliver talks that are pertinent to the region and address issues related to allied health professionals in nephrology. ISN-supported speakers participate in the events on a voluntary basis and do not receive honorarium. They are dedicated to sharing their knowledge with doctors, specialists, and nurses.

Every year, the ISN CME Program brings essential teaching and training to some 14,000 doctors and healthcare practitioners.

Since 1993, the ISN CME Committee, as well as the ISN Regional Boards, have supported local event organizers in building suitable scientific programs matching the needs of the local nephrology community. These meetings are organized by either ISN affiliated national, regional societies or credible scientific/medical society.

The goals of the ISN CME Program are (1) to stimulate the interest of the local and regional nephrology communities in expanding their programs and developing relationships with experts who can provide additional information and support; and (2) inspire young professionals to become part of the ISN community and contribute to our advocacy, research, and training activities.

The ISN CME Program does not provide CME credits. Obtaining accreditation from official bodies is the sole responsibility of the meeting organizers.

IMPORTANCE OF REGIONAL MEETINGS

The ISN CME Program supports integrated proposals that cover a wider geographical region in order to maximize impact. Indeed, regional meetings are platforms where nephrologists should strategically discuss the available local/regional resources and the best way to expand nephrology services. Promoting a dialogue amongst the nephrology communities in a region is particularly helpful.

For more details about the program or on how to apply, please contact cme@theisn.org.

2. APPLICATION GUIDELINES

ELIGIBILITY CRITERIA

- ISN membership:

It is a key requirement that both the meeting organizers and proposed speakers are active and ISN Full members in good standing.

- Meeting organizers must be ISN Full members for at least one (1) year prior to the year of application.

- Proposed speakers must be ISN Full members for at least three (3) continuous years prior to the year of application.

Priority consideration will be given to organizing societies that are affiliated with the ISN.

- Meeting's Country Classification as per World Bank

Applications are open to meetings that are held in lower-, lower-middle-, and upper-middle-income countries according to World Bank classification.

- Scientific program & target audience:

A formal scientific program of the meeting must be provided (even if preliminary) and target an attendance of at least 100 participants (preferably with an international/regional scope). Classroom type courses for in-house faculty are not considered eligible. A one-day meeting can be incorporated into a national or international conference of nephrology. A stand-alone meeting should have a program of at least 2 full days.

The incorporation of sessions and activities for other kidney health professionals (nurses, technicians, etc.) in the scientific program is highly encouraged.

- Speakers:

Although speakers may be suggested by meeting organizers, the ISN CME Committee will take such suggestion under advisement only and will have the final word on the sponsored speakers. Relevant topics and needs of the region must be clearly addressed in the application. Selected and sponsored speakers are preferably local and regional.

ISN-supported speakers give at least 2 lectures per meeting (minimum of 25 minutes each), participate in other activities such as visits to centers, hospital rounds, informal meetings with trainees, etc., and agree to provide feedback on the relevance and impact of the meeting to the ISN, as well as report on the status of the nephrology in the region. Meetings with representatives of the Health Ministry of the region are highly encouraged. Speakers are active and engaged ISN full members and act as ambassadors of ISN's vision, mission, and goals. ISN staff will provide slides on ISN which are required to be presented at the meeting. ISN-supported speakers are voice and play a key role in promoting the ISN network and activities to the local communities.

The ISN CME Committee will give priority consideration to applications from regional meetings as well as from meeting organizers involved in other ISN Programs (Educational Ambassadors, Sister Renal Centers, etc.). Meeting organizers are strongly encouraged to involve neighboring regions in their program.

The ISN CME Program will not provide support for industry employees or industry-planned programs.

HOW TO APPLY

Applications to the CME Program are accepted all year long. However, applications must be submitted 3-6 months prior to the planned start date of the meeting.

Applications must be submitted 3-6 months prior to the planned start date of the meeting via programs.theisn.org

An application is composed of:

- Application form
- Scientific program of meeting
- Budget allocation to meeting and breakdown of costs
- CV of proposed speaker(s)
- Post-meeting report of previously supported meetings (if any).

For any inquiries, contact cme@theisn.org.

3. SUPPORT

The ISN CME Program offers support to meeting organizers by:

- Providing advice in establishing a suitable scientific program developed to meet the needs of the local/regional nephrology communities;
- Selecting expert speakers in relation to the scientific program;
- Funding the travel of the selected speakers;
- Involving ISN Regional Boards or other Supporting Groups for advice and support.

In order to remain international and geographically equitable, the ISN cannot provide support for the same meetings for more than 2 consecutive years at a time.

4. TOPICS OF MEETINGS

The ISN CME Committee will consider applications on any nephrology topic, but strong preference will be given to topics that align with ISN's strategic priorities. The scientific value of the event should be evident, as reflected by the selection and status of the speakers and their expertise in the field, as well as the quality of the scientific content. Meeting organizers are expected to develop programs specifically related to relevant local challenges and clinical program development rather than generic nephrology teaching.

ISN is interested in improving the knowledge base and profile of nurses and allied health professionals in low-resource countries and of increasing their awareness of ISN initiatives. ISN will, therefore, consider favorably the requests to provide support to nurse speakers who will present at the meeting concerned, and at associated nursing or other workshops in cooperation with local nephrology nurse leaders.

6. EVALUATION CRITERIA

The ISN CME Committee led by Chair and Deputy Chair, often reaching out to ISN Regional Boards or other Supporting Groups for advice, review, and comment on the applications along the following criteria:

- Profile of Local organizers
Meetings should be organized by a credible scientific/medical society such as ISN affiliated national, regional societies. Meeting organizers must be ISN Full members for at least one (1) year prior to the year of application.
- Scientific quality of the agenda and alignment with ISN's strategic priorities.
The scientific program needs to be fully detailed with sessions and topics, and include the speakers' names. The scientific value of the event should be evident. The topic(s) of the meeting should be in line with ISN's main goals and strategic priorities.
- Relevance and sustainable impact of the meeting within the region
Meeting organizers are expected to develop programs more specifically related to relevant local challenges and clinical program development rather than generic nephrology knowledge. Local and regional health needs should be fully described in the application form so to allow the ISN CME Committee to have a global overview of the past, present and future actions/challenges of the host country.
- Selection of speakers and relevance of financial support requested
The ISN CME Committee takes into consideration the proposed speakers (if any) by the meeting organizers. Proposed speakers must be ISN Full members for at least three (3) continuous years prior to the year of application.

Meeting organizers must endorse the principles of the Declaration of Istanbul and ensure that all scientists, presenters, and topics discussed are not in conflict with its principles.
- Synergies with other ISN programs
Applications submitted by Sister Centers or past Fellows or in conjunction with an application to the Educational Ambassadors Program are given some priority consideration and are more inclined to be supported as ISN tries to maximize its local impact.

7. REVIEW PROCESS

8. PROMOTION OF SUPPORTED MEETINGS VIA ISN

The ISN will include the name, short description and logo of the supported event on the ISN website's Calendar of Events – ISN Stakeholders.

9. ISN REQUIREMENTS FOR SUPPORTED MEETINGS

ISN VISIBILITY

The ISN will provide successful applicants with a formal acceptance letter and the ISN logo for inclusion on printed and online materials related to the meeting in question.

Note that the ISN logo should NOT be included on event materials (including the event's website) until AFTER application has been approved and is to be used specifically for the sponsored event only. In addition, the following statement must accompany the logo: ISN's endorsement is for the promotion of education in general, therefore the specific content of the event/course is the responsibility of the organizer.

In order to help promoting the ISN to the meeting delegates, event organizers and ISN-supported speakers are required to:

- Actively recommend that delegates coming to the meeting, course, or workshop join the ISN community and receive the bi-weekly ISN Insight e-newsletter by:
 - Collecting the name, surname, country, and email address of the delegates who agree to receive ISN Insight and providing this list to ISN (Excel spreadsheet);
 - Prominently displaying the hyperlink to the ISN website on the event's web page: www.theisn.org
- Feature the name, disclaimer statement above, and logo of ISN appropriately on all publications of the event and provide copies of all relevant official publications to ISN
- Provide ISN with a copy of the event pricing table listing the delegate/attendee registration fees.

Organizers of ISN-supported events are also requested to:

- Offer reduced registration fees to ISN members (if feasible)
- Allow the showing of intermission slides about ISN's upcoming programs and activities
- Promote upcoming ISN events, especially the upcoming WCN.

For certain events, ISN will contact meeting organizers to discuss options for promotional or educational activities, such as joint scientific sessions, inclusion of ISN information in the delegates' bags or registration documents, inclusion of an ISN booth or table at the event for announcing ISN's conferences and promoting research, education, advocacy, and membership, and inclusion and promotion of selected proceedings on the ISN Academy (ISN's educational portal). Note that the publication of summaries, presentations, or conference audio-visual material on the ISN Academy requires a separate editorial review and approval process.

REPORTS

The organizers and supported speakers of the ISN-supported meetings must submit a post-meeting report within 3 weeks after the meeting.

The post-meeting report helps ISN to assess the benefit and impact of its support. It is also a way for ISN to gather information on the main challenges and barriers for developing nephrology in host regions and the role of ISN in present and future challenges.

Non-submission of such report leads to rejection of ISN support for next years.

ISN welcomes pictures, videos, short stories and quotes about the meetings at any time during or shortly after the meeting. This greatly helps ISN publish short news article about the meetings and regional activities as well as share successes and challenges within the global kidney community.
